I've been reading this book to refresh my memory on digital signal processing. It is a good book, lots of theory in there, however it is a bit dry in its explanations, there are a lot of results (for example the value of a certain number series) that just are presented out of the blue while the reader scratches his head trying to come up with the missing steps.

The most common processing approach in the time or space domain is enhancement of the input signal through a method called filtering. Digital filtering generally consists of some linear transformation of a number of surrounding samples around the current sample of the input or output signal.

El audio digital es la codificación digital de una señal eléctrica que representa una onda sonora. Consiste en una secuencia de valores enteros y se obtiene de dos procesos: el muestreo y la cuantificación digital de la señal eléctrica.

@mujtaba: Yes, there is an advantage in using root raised cosine in receiver. Typical receivers have additive white gaussian noise and matched filtering helps one to maximize the signal to noise ratio in that scenario.

@Philips: I do not know much about the channel model for power line communications (except that the channel is a wire, ofcourse). However, for OFDM aspect may I point to couple of articles which I have written in the past.
